COURSE DESCRIPTION:
In this course, we will investigate some of the ethical issues facing businesses including acceptable risk, workers right, economic sustainability and inclusivity, outsourcing, whistle blowing and ethical issues in marketing. In a way to understand these issues is to reflect upon our own ethical thinking by raising questions like: what moral philosophies and theories direct our ethical behavior and business practices? Do we apply moral theories and standards proactively in decision making, and not after the fact rationalization of our action? Is there an ethical framework at the organization level to adhere to? How do we differentiate between being ethical and legal? All these quires require critical thinking and this course aims to equip students to achieve this goal.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:
1. Important learning objectives of this course are to increase students’ awareness and understanding of ethical issues in business, and to provide students with useful conceptual tools to guide analysis and decisions.

2. Leave students better equipped to identify, think critically about, and resolve ethical issues that are encountered in one’s working life at the individual, organizational, and societal levels.

3. To enhance awareness and increase understanding of the nature of business ethics in the United State as well as global business environment

LEARNING GOALS:

This course fulfills the Core Requirement (SCL)

1. Identify possible ethical problems in a given business context.
2. Critically assess ethical arguments relevant to such issues.
3. Increase awareness of a wide range of ethical challenges that can arise in business
4. Test the strengths and weaknesses of various moral beliefs and ethical arguments relevant to business practices.
5. Reinforce personal sense of compassion and fairness in the context of your current or future professional roles.
6. Evaluate your own perception of leadership and develop ideas to implement ethical leadership in your own given circumstances

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The university's policy on Academic Integrity is available at http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy. The principles of academic integrity require that a student:

- properly acknowledge and cite all use of the ideas, results, or words of others.
- properly acknowledge all contributors to a given piece of work.
- make sure that all work submitted as his or her own in a course or other academic activity is produced without the aid of impermissible materials or impermissible collaboration.
- obtain all data or results by ethical means and report them accurately without suppressing any results inconsistent with his or her interpretation or conclusions.
- treat all other students in an ethical manner, respecting their integrity and right to pursue their educational goals without interference. This requires that a student neither facilitate academic dishonesty by others nor obstruct their academic progress.
- uphold the canons of the ethical or professional code of the profession for which he or she is preparing.

Adherence to these principles is necessary in order to ensure that

- everyone is given proper credit for his or her ideas, words, results, and other scholarly accomplishments.
- all student work is fairly evaluated and no student has an inappropriate advantage over others.
- the academic and ethical development of all students is fostered.
- the reputation of the University for integrity in its teaching, research, and scholarship is maintained and enhanced.
Failure to uphold these principles of academic integrity threatens both the reputation of the University and the value of the degrees awarded to its students. Every member of the University community therefore bears a responsibility for ensuring that the highest standards of academic integrity are upheld.
